DIPHTHERIA CASES ATTEND PARTIES

Health Board Finds Diphtheria Carrier Attended Surprise Parties, and It Would Not Be Surprising If Other Guests Now Have Diphtheria

The board of health officials Thursday while reading the social columns in the local newspapers were startled to read that among the guests present at surprise parties held Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week were diphtheria carriers, and it would not be at all surprising to learn that the other guests now have diphtheria.

The first social affair attended by a diphtheria carrier was that of a surprise party held Tuesday evening on Grand street, while the surprise party attended by a diphtheria carrier was that held Wednesday evening on Clifton avenue. In fact one of the guests present came from a house which is quarantined on account of the dread disease.

The ascertaining of such facts as outlined above gives in brief the reason why diphtheria is spreading so rapidly throughout the city and which has so far numbered so many deaths. Pure carelessness on the part of residents has much to do with the spread of the disease.

Parents whose boys and girls attended the parties mentioned would do well to have their children sent to the city hall to have cultures taken or else call in the family physician before the dread disease breaks out with the possibility of death.

This morning three new cases of diphtheria were reported to the health board and two new cases of flu.

PHYSICIANS TO MEET SATURDAY

At City Hall to Discuss Diphtheria Situation—Dr. Paul B. Brooks of Albany to Address Meeting.

This morning Health Officer Frank A. Johnston, mailed invitations to every physician in the city to attend a meeting to be held Saturday evening at 8:15 o'clock in the city hall to discuss the diphtheria situation in the city. Dr. Paul B. Brooks, director of the division on communicable diseases of the state department at Albany, is expected to be present and deliver an address. The diphtheria situation is so serious that the board of health asked Dr. Johnston to call a meeting of the city physicians. It is expected that every physician in the city will be present that evening.

ANOTHER NEW-STATE BILL

Would Join Connecticut and New Jersey to Eastern New York.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Twenty-nine western counties in New York State will have to look for a new collective name and Connecticut and New Jersey will lose their identity as states if assemblyman J. Fairfax McLaughlin, Democrat, of the Bronx, has his way about it, and all because of prohibition.

Assemblyman McLaughlin doesn't like the way the Legislature spurned the wishes of New York City folks in ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment. He said the fact that the lawmakers acted so drove him to introduce his bill snatching New York city and the eastern counties away from up-state influences.

The proposed new state would take in the counties of New York, Kings, Queens, Bronx, Richmond, Westchester, Dutchess, Putnam, Orange, Dutchess, Ulster, Sullivan, Columbia, Greene, Delaware, Rensselaer, Albany, Schoharie, Otsego, Washington, Saratoga, Schoharie, Montgomery, Herkimer, Warren, Fulton, Hamilton, Essex, Clinton, Franklin, and St. Lawrence and the states of New Jersey and Connecticut.

40,000 Idle in Munich.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Geneva, Feb. 14.—Forty thousand workmen are idle in Munich. There is much misery from famine and lack of coal and electricity. It is reported, Kurt Eisner, the Bavarian premier, is sending the idle men two dollars a day to enable them to alleviate their condition "by drinking and dancing."

Our Course Toward "Reds"

By Telegram to The Freeman. London, Feb. 14.—The United States, which has a constitution guaranteeing in every line the spirit of equality and freedom, has shown us how to deal with anarchists by jailing more than 7,000 for deportation, said the London Daily Express editorially today. "They will be dumped at the time of the next election as a testimonial of his failure."

Engagements at Convention.

The first factory at Convention is now being, extending about 100 feet. The new building purchased of the Building Supply Co. is now being equipped for additional use.

ARMISTICE NOT TO BE DRAWN OUT

Germany to Know What Terms in Few Weeks—Wilson Said Saturday.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Paris, Feb. 14.—Belief prevailed today that there would be no further extension of the armistice after the period which goes into effect on Monday, the duration of which will be four weeks probably.

Within that time military and naval terms, upon which Germany will be accorded peace, will be arranged. They will be submitted to Germany with the alternative of accepting or rejecting them.

It is understood that all of the Allied nations are in accord on this procedure, believing it absolutely necessary that the suspense be cleared up without any further delay so that everyone in every quarter will know just what to expect.

Acceptance of the terms by Germany would end all possibility of hostilities being renewed. The rejection would naturally result in a continuation of the invasion of Germany.

It is believed here that the present propaganda in Germany which has taken the form of complaints that the peace terms are too onerous is designed to handicap the Allied movements and sow discord. This is naturally denied here. Therefore, it has been decided to lay down naval and military terms which, being accepted by Germany, would make demobilization of the Allied armies possible.

It is especially made plain that Germany must absolutely comply with all of the exactions of the armistice for the Allies do not want the present stagnant condition to continue any longer than possible. On this point the supreme inter-Allied war council is in accord.

President Wilson, now plans to leave tonight for Brest, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson. They will sail on the George Washington tomorrow.

The commission on international labor legislation, headed by Samuel Gompers, has formally decided to establish an international labor office with a staff. Its duties will include the collection of information on all subjects relating to the international adjustment of conditions of industrial life, labor and employment and it will undertake special investigations ordered by the conference. It will also issue a journal dealing with problems of industry and employment of international interest.

CHARGE BOYS STOLE FROM FREIGHT CAR

Louis Rochi, Ralph and Edward Norton, Arrested Charged With Stealing and Selling 10 Bags of Barley—Hearing Adjourned.

Louis Rochi, 18 years old, and the Norton brothers, Ralph, 20 years old, and Edward, 16 years, were arrested Thursday afternoon by Chief Wood and Officer Kuehn on a charge of breaking into a freight car on the West Shore tracks and stealing ten bags of barley from the car, which was consigned to F. B. Matthews & Company.

The arrest of Thursday followed the arrest made the day before when five boys, car thieves, were rounded up and all pleaded guilty. Three were sent to Randall's Island, while the other two were placed on probation.

From information that Detective Homer I. Goodsell, of the West Shore Railroad, obtained from Edward Norton, one of the car thieves, arrested Wednesday, he swore out a warrant for the arrest not only of Edward, but also of his brother Ralph, and Louis Rochi.

From Edward's story the three on the evening of February 6 had broken into the car and stole the barley, which they removed to the vacant, Hendricks hay press factory. This barley was valued at $25.00, and according to Edward, three days later, Rochi informed the Norton boys he had sold the barley to parties unknown and had received $20, which he divided up with the Nortons.

This morning Andrew J. Cook appeared in behalf of the boys and entered a plea of not guilty and the hearing was adjourned until next Friday morning. Amos Van Etten appeared for the railroad company.

The charge against the boys is grand larceny in the first degree.

Walsh gave an address which shall bring the regiment home. A great crowd was present to greet the soldier boys. John Jones of Rahy was a prominent speaker at the rally.

The Sawkill Club will give a grand entertainment on St. Patrick's night, which will be a great success.

IN THE SERVICE OF OUR COUNTRY

Lieut. Frank O'Meara is spending a short furlough with his mother on St. James street.

Leonard R. Coutant of Stone Ridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Coutant, has joined the navy at Pelham Naval Station, New York.

Thursday Nicholas Stock received word from his son, Corporal J. Nicholas Stock of Camp Dix, that he has been promoted to the rank of Battalion Sergeant Major.

N. E. SHAKES OFF WINTER MANTLE

And Appears With Spring Tales of Flowers, Butterflies and Robins' Eggs.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Boston, Feb. 14.—Signs of spring and balmy weather came from all sections of New England today. It is the warmest February on record in this section of the country.

With the thermometer at 63 in Saco, Maine, Harry Quinby, funeral director, appeared wearing a straw hat. A hunter strolled into Biddeford, Maine, with the first bunch of May flowers of the year. A Dunstan, Maine, farm hand, brought a butterfly into Portland in his cap. Golf matches were played on the links of the Nashua Country Club, usually under deep snow at this time of the year. The Rev. J. F. Dutton, pastor of an Agawam, Mass., church, found three robins' eggs in a nest on the southern side of the parsonage. And, owing to the scarcity of snow at Hanover, N. H., a supply has to be carted down from the mountains for the skimming contests at the annual Dartmouth College winter carnival.

In direct contrast to the balmy weather in New England, the middle west reported a bad snow and sleet storm, while New York and vicinity had one of the worst rain storms of the season during the night and early morning.

WEATHER DELAYS FLYING SQUADRON

Only One Member Refuses to be Restricted and Covers Her Route Advertising the Automobile Show.

Not being able to turn their automobile into hydroplanes or boats, the members of Lieutenant White's Flying Squadron of Motor Corps women were persuaded to remain at home today on account of the rain and will make their trips tomorrow, if the weather is better, for the purpose of advertising the Kingston Automobile Show to be held March 13, 14 and 15. Of course, they wanted to go today, but the mere men who were to be taken along to do some of the card distributing revolved at the prospect of a long drive in a rain storm and with one exception the Motor Corps volunteers were persuaded to wait for better weather. Miss Smith, to whom was assigned Route No. 6, couldn't be restrained and started out to cover the route regardless of weather.

India's Bishop at St. James's Church.

Bishop Warne of India is to be the preacher at the St. James's Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday morning. The bishop is one of the most heroic figures in the missionary fields of the Orient today, and he is also a charming and forceful speaker. It is hoped that there will be a very large congregation to hear him, for no one belongs to St. James's can afford to miss the service. At the popular evening service Dr. Barakwanah will preach, and in addition to the music by the choir, Mr. Seales is one of the best and best-known baritone singers in and around New York city. The members and friends of the Rotary Club who heard him last Wednesday were delighted with his wonderful singing. It will be a great privilege to hear him again on Sunday night in St. James's Church. About thirty years ago Mr. Seales' father, Dr. W. N. Seales, was the regular pastor of St. James's Church.

There's an R in March.

So we can eat oysters and have them cook them better than by the following method found in the March Woman's Home Companion: "Thirteen oysters—1 pint oysters, 2 tablespoons butter, salt, pepper, 2 tablespoons flour, 2-3 cups rich milk, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon white wine, 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice, salt, pepper.

Chop oysters and cook until plump and water drain to curl. Melt butter and add them, stir in flour, salt and pepper, add milk, Cook stirring constantly, until boiling point is reached. Put two minutes in a saucepan, and serve with their liquor."

TAX RETURN ON FISCAL YEAR BASIS

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Feb. 14.—Individual business men who keep their books on the basis of a fiscal year rather than the calendar year can make their tax returns on a fiscal year basis under the new $6,000,000,000 war revenue law, which was passed by the senate and which now only needs the president's signature. Under previous tax measures only corporations and partnerships could make returns on the basis of a fiscal year.

In directing attention to the change today, officials of the internal revenue bureau of the treasury stated that it would be a great boon to thousands of individual business men, who heretofore had to average their books for two years to make out their tax returns.

The new provision, however, does not apply to professional men, or individuals as such, but only to those running an individual business, that is, a business enterprise of which they are sole owner.

Regulations under the new law, giving interpretation of its provisions and instructions as to how the taxes apply will soon be ready for distribution by the treasury.

NIAGARA COMMISSION HEAD

Outlines Plans For National Soldier Memorial At Falls.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Feb. 14 (Special to the Freeman). Judge Alphonso T. Clearwater, at a meeting of the Niagara Reservation Commission here yesterday, outlined his plans concerning the national memorial to the heroes of the world war at Niagara Falls. Judge Clearwater is the father of the plan idea to convert the Niagara Reservation into a park, free to the people for all time. Judge Clearwater is a member of the State Reservation Commission. Anley Wilcox of Buffalo, also a member of the commission, thought that the bond issue of $2,000,000 provided for in the bill introduced by Senator Thompson of Niagara county, carrying out Judge Clearwater's plan, was too large an amount. He suggested that it be cut down.

Senator Thompson expressed himself as ready and willing to make any changes in the measure as met with the approval of the members of the commission.

The bond issue provided for in the Thompson bill is intended for the purpose of purchasing additional property to be annexed to the Niagara State Reservation.

LOVED T. R.

Julius Holz, Prussian-born, Latest Donor For Memorial.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Feb. 14.—The latest contribution which has thus far reached the office of the Roosevelt Memorial National Committee at 1 Madison avenue, New York, is from a man who was born in Prussia and has for years been publishing a German language newspaper. It was a check for one hundred dollars and the donor is Julius Holz, publisher of the "New Yorker Herald." It was the straight American and unflinching patriotism of Mr. Holz's German language newspaper during the war which first drew Col. Roosevelt's attention to the publisher. Holz became an intimate friend of Mr. Roosevelt's and was one of the few foreigners frequently admitted to his bedside during his last period at Roosevelt Hospital.

UNDERNEATH THE CITY HALL BOMB

Starting Monday, City Clerk Doremus will start taking dog taxes as an accommodation to the public. Dog taxes are due March 1. The application blanks to be filled out by the dog owner are practically the same as last year with the addition that owners have to declare when he became owner of the dog. Last year about 1,100 dogs were tagged in the city.

The water board held its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, but only routine matters were disposed of.

Delegates of the local fire companies were present at the city hall Thursday evening when the fire insurance money was apportioned to each company. Under the law 2 per cent of the premium on foreign insurance is paid to the fire companies. Last year $2,000 was thus paid, making each fire company's share $175.

The Kingston Patrolmen's Association at the regular monthly meeting Thursday evening appointed a committee to prepare resolutions on the death of Policeman James Lawrence. The committee appointed by Sergeant Hanley, who presided, follows: Sergeant Phinney and Officers James V. Simpson and Andrew Walker.

NOT TO ADMIT GERMANY

To League Of Nations, According To Tardieu.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Paris, Feb. 14.—There is no present intention of admitting enemy powers to the league of nations, it was declared today by Andre Tardieu, member of the French peace commission.

Neutral nations, favorably disposed towards the league, will be received, upon application, if suitable guarantees are given.

The society of powers, according to M. Tardieu, follows the lines previously indicated, with measures relating to international arbitration and so on.

National sovereignty remains intact. The disarmament principle will entail the existence of a minimum scale of national armaments. M. Tardieu stated. The league will exist henceforth with the members having the status as the peace conference.

Fire Near Officers.

The house owned and occupied by William H. Hunter, near officers' quarters, burned to the ground early Thursday morning. Mr. Hunter and Alfred Todd, a young man employed by him, were asleep when about midnight the smoke filling the house. It was too late to save the furniture and other household effects, and nearly everything was lost. Mr. Hunter's property worth perhaps $200, was burned with the rest. The house and contents were totally insured. It is thought the building took fire from the chimney.

five guarantee of its sincere intention to observe its international obligations, and unless it shall conform to such principles as may be prescribed by the league in regard to its naval and military forces and armaments.

Article VIII: The high contracting parties recognize the principle that the maintenance of peace will require the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety and the enforcement by common action of international obligations, having special regard to the geographical situation and circumstances of each state, and the executive council shall formulate plans for effecting such reduction.

The executive council shall also determine for the consideration and action of the several governments what military equipment and armaments are fair and reasonable in proportion to the scale of forces laid down in the program of disarmament, and these limits, when adopted, shall not be exceeded without the permission of the executive council.

The high contracting parties agree that the manufacture by private enterprise of munitions and implements of war lends itself to grave objections, and direct the executive council to advise how the evil effects attendant upon such manufacture can be prevented, due regard being had to the necessities of these countries which are not able to manufacture for themselves the munitions and implements of war necessary for their safety.

The high contracting parties undertake in no way to conceal from each other the condition of such of their industries as are capable of being adapted to war-like purposes or the scale of their armaments, and agree that there shall be full and frank interchange of information as to their military and naval program.

Article IX: Permanent commission shall be constituted to advise the league on the execution of the provisions of Article VIII and on military and naval questions generally.

Article X: The high contracting parties undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all states members of the league. In case of any such aggression, or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the executive council shall advise upon the means by which the obligation shall be fulfilled.

Article XI: Any war or threat of war, whether immediately affecting any of the high contracting parties or not, is hereby declared a matter of concern to the league, and the high contracting parties reserve the right to take any action that may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations.

It is hereby also declared and agreed to be the friendly right of each of the high contracting parties to draw the attention of the body of delegates or of the executive council to any circumstances affecting international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends.

Article XII: The high contracting parties agree that should disputes arise between them which cannot be adjusted by the ordinary processes of diplomacy, they will in no case resort to war without previously submitting the questions and matters involved either to arbitration or to enquiry by the executive council and until three months after the award by the arbitrators or a recommendation by the executive council; and that they will not even then resort to war against a member of the league which complies with the award of the arbitrators or the recommendation of the executive council.

In any case under this article, the award of the arbitrators shall be made within a reasonable time, and the recommendation of the executive council shall be made within six months after the submission of the dispute.

Article XIII: The high contracting parties whenever any dispute or difficulty shall arise between them which they recognize to be suitable for submission to arbitration and which cannot be satisfactorily settled by diplomacy, will submit the whole matter to arbitration. For this purpose the court of arbitration to which the case is referred shall be chosen by the parties in any convention existing between them. The high contracting parties agree that they will carry out in full good faith any award that may be rendered in the event of any failure to carry out the award, the executive council shall propose what steps can best be taken to give effect thereto.

Article XIV: The executive council shall formulate plans for the establishment of a permanent court of international justice and shall endeavor to have and determine any matter which the parties recognize as suitable for the submission to it for arbitration under the foregoing article.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Feb. 13.—We were wrongly informed in regard to the food sale for the benefit of the Episcopal church, instead of being the 14th, as was stated last week, we have been correctly told it is to be held this Saturday, the 15th in Dr. Reed's building. So be on hand to get some good eatables for those people. Understand the culinary department well and you will get your money's worth every time.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher entertained 25 guests last Friday evening at their home on Vineyard avenue, and each one gave evidence of the pleasure derived from the party for there was sport from start to finish. Games and sociability was prevalent and refreshments, that all enjoyed, were served, and very late all left for home and dreams of the Fisher party.

Remember on the 15th of this month, Ida McKinley Council, D. of A., will hold their regular meeting. They expect to initiate 6 candidates and refreshments will be served by the committee in charge. All members requested to be present and all officers at their stations.

Get ready all you Stars for the 21st, for the O. E. S. here are going to have a masquerade and a box lunch. Just come out and see if you can tell who is who. Some of them will perhaps puzzle you but it will be good to solve the enigma.

Dorretta Gedney leaves Saturday to take up the work of a "nurse." We wish her success in her new field of labor.

Mrs. Amelia Elmendorf of Clintonville was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Cornell of Maple avenue on Sunday.

Mrs. Jane Seymour of "Hilair," sister of Mrs. J. S. Mack, has been quite ill for some time. We are glad to say she is improving finely. Nearly every one you come in contact with seems to be complaining and so many have these fearful hard colds, it stands one in hand to be careful.

Methodist people were delighted Sunday to have their pastor, Rev. F. A. Coons, in his accustomed place. He has been suffering from a heavy cold for more than a week.

Jack Lucas of Maple avenue has been ill this week.

A few of our young people were in attendance at the prom in New Paltz last Saturday evening, and they report a very fine time.

A sisterhood in this place, called the P. E. O., met at the home of Mrs. J. D. Rose last Thursday and held a delightful meeting. We are informed this is a secret organization and their meetings are held in the afternoon at homes of the members. We have never heard how large the membership is.

Mrs. Albert Langdon of New Rochelle has been spending some time with her mother, Mrs. Lettie Bruyn, and aunt, Mrs. Mary Malloch, at their home on Grand street.

Mrs. C. Leroy, Mrs. Frank Countant, Frank Simpson, Mrs. Lorin Schantz, Mrs. Orsen Shaeley, Mrs. Ethel Hull and daughter, Mrs. Harry W. Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitaker were among the recent visitors from here in Poughkeepsie.

William Maynard, who is one of the many wireless operators on steamers plying between New York and France, has been enjoying a furlough and his friends were delighted to see him. He looks as if the ocean trips agree with him, and he also enjoys going about through the different places across seas, still he has a very warm spot in his heart for his Highland home and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fisher were in Poughkeepsie on business Monday.

William Perkins was in Poughkeepsie the first of the week, looking after some business propositions.

Uriah Decker has been ill for a few days at his home on Vineyard avenue. At this time he is improving.

Mrs. Rivenburgh had a small company of women Monday evening at her home, wives of some of the Fellowship. Cards were enjoyed. These people meet at the different homes a couple of times a month for some pleasure.

Dr. W. T. Rivenburgh, from Camp Union, is at his home here for a few days' rest.

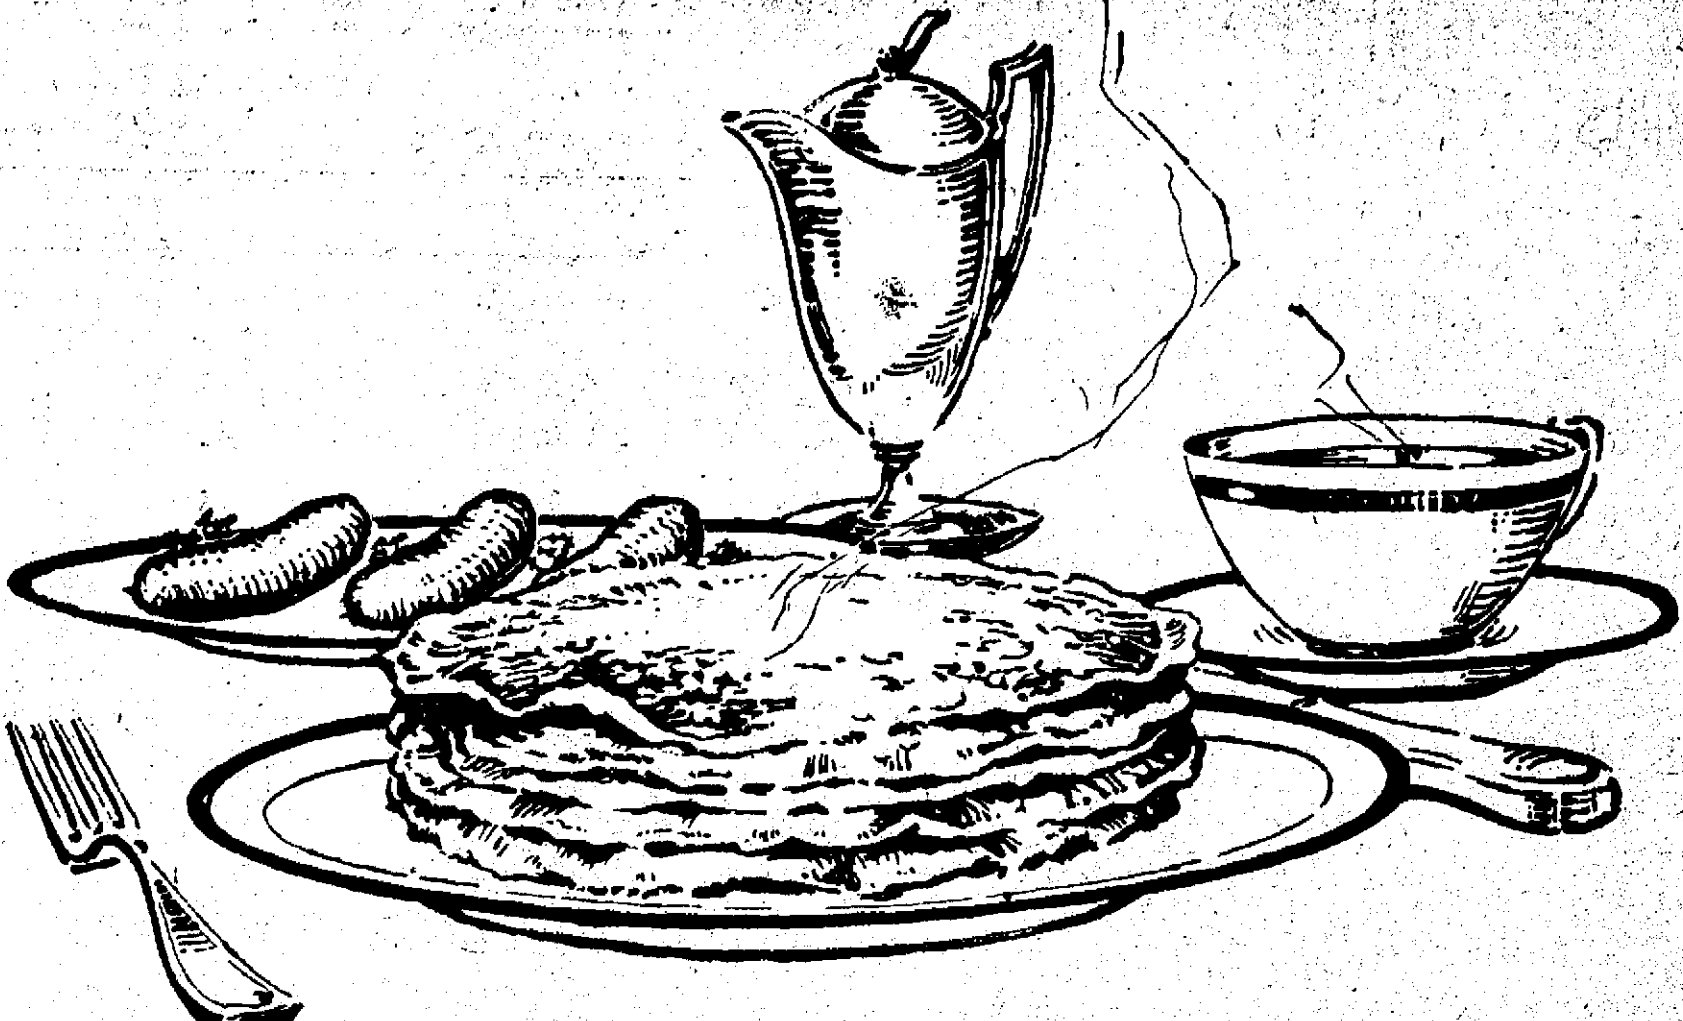

Dr. Edward DuBois left here the first of the week for New York city, where he has a lucrative position. His friends wish him every success in his work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Foster left here Wednesday morning for Ulster, Little Falls and several other places of interest. They have many relatives in that part and will be gone a week or more. This will be a fine automobile trip and we hope they may have fine weather while away so they can enjoy every moment of the time.

Theron Bullock, who has been ill for several weeks, has so far recovered to be able to go out this week.

Mrs. A. W. Lent of Milton avenue is visiting her parents out of town for a couple of weeks.

Friends of Edward Townsend gave him a surprise party on Monday evening. All had a jolly time.

Buckwheat cakes—with sausage! Um-m!

Make this wonderful old-time breakfast the easy Aunt Jemima way!

Buckwheat cakes—with sausage! Oh, how that combination does tempt the appetite on a wintry February morning!

Perhaps you've been forgetting how "powerful good" buckwheat cakes really are! Give yourself a treat tomorrow—see what pleasant memories the first taste brings back! Memories of all sorts of healthy outdoor things—hickory smoke curling upward in thin blue wisps—skating on the old pond, coasting down the big hill into drifts of snow—

It's the simplest thing in the world to make buckwheat cakes—if you make them the easy Aunt Jemima way!

All you need is a package of Aunt Jemima Buckwheat Flour—you add nothing but water. Everything necessary to make the best buckwheat cakes you've ever tasted is already mixed in the flour.

Order a package of Aunt Jemima Buckwheat (in the yellow package) from your grocer and give your husband this wonderful old-time breakfast tomorrow! Aunt Jemima Mills Company, St. Joseph, Missouri.

day afternoon at the J. P. Whitley home, and it is quite certain that no place around here contained more pleasure to the cubic inch than there. Mrs. W. E. Wilcox and Mrs. Arthur Schamehorn assisted Mrs. Whitley. These ladies extended to all most cordial greetings. At 2 o'clock silence was noticed and the pastor, Rev. Foster A. Coons, conducted devotional exercises, which were very impressive. After that the gavel sounded and business was taken up. There were present members and guests, about 70, and the various departments were working finely and gave gratifying results, and the pastor, Mrs. J. W. Foster and Mrs. C. J. Eiting made some interesting remarks, which all greatly enjoyed. Someone mentioned they thought "Stewardship" must have been the club's theme, for it seemed there was the thought of stewardship of life, money and service and social power. These were all effectively carried out. The social service department is of utmost importance as those who have been sick and received flowers, delicacies and visits can testify. There were many live wires at this gathering and one of the wires gave out the message of a "free will offering." This was received most graciously at the switchboard and two of the operators got busy and went with a large basket to receive the funds. Then all were anxious to know the result. In a short time word came over the wire. Between $70 and $80 was the reply and the club appreciated greatly this generous gift. After the storm of applause had subsided the president announced adjournment. Then everyone seized the opportunity to visit with each other and the hostess served a most delicious luncheon, and included in this "menu" was a Swedish dish which was greatly relished. Voices all united in declaring this meeting was one of the best ever. All were then paid for attending because of the unusual strength of the program and everyone returned home with inspiration that will aid greatly in bringing the club to still higher efficiency. The lateness of the hour compelled our retirement but the memories of the afternoon remain with us and form one of the pleasant spots in the book of fond recollections of happy hours spent in pleasant company.

INTERNATIONAL BOARDING HOUSE.

Vice presidents, who have a thankless job at best, are rarely given credit for the talents they may possess and perhaps still more rarely an opportunity to reveal what may be in them. Rightly or wrongly Vice President Marshall, in comparison with the prominent statesmen of the times, has been regarded as a "lightweight." Yet he now challenges our admiration with the following utterances:

"I believe that America belongs to American citizens, native and naturalized, who are willing to seek redress for their grievances in orderly and constitutional ways, and I believe that all others should be taught, peacefully if we can and forcibly if we must, that our country is not an international boarding house nor an anarchist cafe."

This clearly points out the danger with which this country has been long afflicted and boldly recognizes the necessary remedy. "International boarding house!" What other phrase could so accurately reveal the attitude of the hundreds of thousands who have come to this country to enjoy its blessings while scheming to do it injury in the interests of a foreign power such as Germany or to spread the tentacles of the beast of Anarchy? The foes of this country in our midst, as Mr. Marshall says, must be checked peacefully if we can or rounded up forcibly if we must. There is no other way.

WHY THE DIFFERENCE?

Shortly before the armistice was signed, the Military Intelligence Bureau of the War Department issued a letter to the press asking that newspapers refrain from "exploiting unduly the participation and achievements of American forces in Allied victories," the reason for the request being that such exploitation "may inspire jealousy and have a harmful effect." It was also stated that the members of the American expeditionary forces were being embarrassed to the point of discomfiture by the laudatory articles which gave American troops chief credit for accomplishments.

In view of the plea the administration felt impelled to make at that time, when all the cables and mails were censored, we wonder that there is no similar plea now when all the dispatches, more or less under the influence of a censorship, give President Wilson credit for practically everything that is being done at the peace conference. Is there no fear of "jealousy" now, or danger that the American delegates to the peace conference will be "embarrassed to the point of discomfiture" by the exploitation of the part taken by President Wilson?

Since the newspapers were scolded for the former instance for doing what they were permitted, and perhaps encouraged to do, how long shall we wait for another reprimand for exploiting unduly the achievements of the Americans? Or is it a crime to exploit the achievements of soldiers, merely, and not a crime to exploit the work of the American dictator?

A little figuring will demonstrate that "public works" will be of little consequence in solving any unemployment problem. An appropriation of $100,000,000 would provide work for a million men for 25 days at $4 per day. If all of it were spent for wages. As a matter of practical application, much more than half of the appropriation would necessarily be spent for materials, equipment, housing, transportation, etc. What this country needs is not a few big undertakings backed by government appropriations but hundreds of thousands of small jobs, employing one or two or a dozen or a hundred men each, scattered all over the country and aiding to get the concentrated war workers back into their peace-time abodes and occupations.

One young citizeness reported today politics "embarrassing" because "you can't be sure whether a man is going to propose or merely ask you for your vote." The eternal feminine—even with a bullet attached.

Charles Hagedorn is trying to divorce his wife Zita because she is pro-Ally. If Charles were not even more thick-headed than the average European ex-monarch or king he would climb down on the Allied side of the fence himself.

Poor President Wilson has been petitioned to make woman suffrage for the world a binding article of the peace settlements and because he ventured to intimate that the Peace Conference faces too many knotty problems already he is to be burned in effigy.

While waiting that they have "gone broke" and are even "starving," those sly Huns have quietly offered the Russians a loan with a view to gain influence and secure future pickings in the distracted country of the moon-chasing Slavs.

AMERICAN OPPORTUNITY.
Although the populated area of Siberia is only a belt along the Trans-Siberian railway, that belt is 6,000 miles long and contains nearly 20,000,000 people. Before the war Siberian foreign trade was largely in the hands of German buyers, which undoubtedly will make desperate efforts to regain it when the return of normal conditions has brought back the demand for general merchandise, rolling stock and agricultural machinery. But in spite of the geographical proximity of Germany eastern Siberia, when its railway service has been reorganized, will be most easily reached by way of Vladivostok. The commercial opportunity is one that America cannot afford to neglect.—Yonkers Companion.

Moderate Attractions.
With a population estimated at 600,000 and an area approximately equal to that of Pennsylvania, Montana has abundant room for development. It has a tropical climate with few of the usual drawbacks. The interior is mountainous and rich in minerals, with considerable rich land suitable for diversified farming and fruit growing, while all of the remainder, even the deep mountain slopes, is used for pasturage.

SAY COUNTRY PAPER SERVES COMMUNITY

Country Editor at Farmers' Week Thinks Local Newspaper Touches All Sides of Life.

On the basis of service alone the country newspaper can justify its existence, in the opinion of one country editor who attended farmers' week at Cornell, which is being held this week at the New York state college of agriculture.

"No matter how poor the paper may be, it serves its community better than most of the people of the community realize," said this editor.

"The mere fact that one man in the place has some type, some ink, some paper, and machinery, however crude, for impressing that type on the paper," he went on, "and has what he, at least, calls a newspaper which the people of that community are in the habit of receiving at regular intervals, is of importance to that community."

"A means of communication is thus available—not as rapid, perhaps as the three tells—telegraph, telephone and tell-a-woman but one less likely to change the information as it circulates about the community. No matter how small the circulation of the local paper may be, let anything of more than usual interest be printed and every person in the community is sure to read it."

The editor said he feels the country newspaper is worthy to rank with the church and the school and the farm bureau as factors in community life. He pointed out that it touches and helps every side of the community—the spiritual, the educational, the industrial and commercial, the social, the governmental.

Knobs From Once Popular Shop.

Willis Roe has presented Miss Kate Westbrook, the custodian of the Senate House on Fair street, with two brass door knobs from the building now owned by him which was years ago known as the "Penny store" and located in Higginsville near Frog Alley. These knobs are possibly over one hundred years old. Over fifty years ago when this store was popular as a place for the past generations to get rid of their pennies it was conducted by "Bear" Samter, who was a large man with a massive crop of black hair, but notwithstanding his name or appearance he was a popular man with the kiddies of those days and enjoyed a thriving candy and novelty business. The steps of this building are well worn down from the daily patronage of the children of by-gone generations but the original steps are there that so many young feet trampled over eager to spend their pennies for some of "Bear" Samter's candy and marbles.

Very interesting talks were given by James Wright on the care of chickens, and by Frank Bice on cows, feeding and milk production. An amusing story was read by Mary Brink entitled "Jimmy's Dream Chair." A piano solo was delightfully rendered by Miss Gertrude Freeman. Plans are being made to have the hall thoroughly renovated and the entertainment committee will hold a clam chowder supper and dance in the near future.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE TOWN

The Stroller Hears About Best Way to Settle the Russian Question—More About the Police Pension Fund.

"I see where they are having a devil of a time over in Russia," remarked the customer entering the barber shop for his usual chat.
"I have been reading about it too," replied the barber, "and it seems to me the best way to settle the Russian question would be to fence Russia off from the rest of the world, and then let them go to it."
"Going to attend the charter hearing Tuesday?" asked the customer, following a pause.
"Afraid I can't find the time," replied the barber regretfully, "but there are several suggested amendments I don't agree with, and there are others I would like to suggest."
"What are the ones you'd like to add?" asked the customer.
"I favor changing the provisions covering the police and firemen's pension funds," explained the barber.
"In what way?" queried the customer.
"It don't look fair to me," continued the barber, "for a cop to serve twenty years and during that time keep paying 2 per cent of his salary to the fund, and then get stuck and die, and lose every cent he had paid in, or rather have those depending on him lose it."
"The way I understand it," continued the barber, "a cop is eligible for retirement after serving twenty years. Now take those who have served more than that their dependents will not receive one penny from the fund unless the cop happens to lose his life in the performance of his duties."
"It don't look fair at that," agreed the customer.
"Sure it don't," replied the barber, "and the aldermen Tuesday ought to take that question up and see when the charter is revised that the widows and dependent mothers are taken care of."

Some weeks ago Miss Elizabeth Hummel and Miss Florence Booth gave a party in Elmside Hall for the benefit of the Red Cross for the relief of Belgian orphans. However, it was cleared and has been given to the Red Cross in Kingston for the purpose mentioned.

We think Miss Booth and Miss Hummel deserve credit for their interest in so good a cause.

VALENTINES OF OLD

Some Recollections of the Time
When People Took the Day
Most Seriously.

RYHMESTERS OUT IN FORCE

Doggerel for the Most Part, but Some Really Pretty Verse Can Be Found in the Treasured Hoards of Collectors.

By FRANCES BURNS.

You are witty, you are pretty;
You are single—what a pity!
I am single for your sake,
What a handsome couple we shall make!

Such doggerel, a little over a century ago, hack writers used to dash off to include in the funny chapbooks through which rustic swains were instructed how to make love on St. Valentine's day.

That was before the era of the commercial printed valentines. Gentlemen, and others, still penned their own or some "boughten" sentiments, on or about the 14th of February, and tremblingly dispatched the calligraphic production to the cherished "fair." Often outside help in rhyming was sought.

"The Gentlemen's New Valentine Writer," "The Bower of Cupid," "Cupid's Annual Charter," "The School of Love," "The Ladies' Polite Valentine Writer"—these are some of the souvenirs of the period when all valentines were hand made and home-made.

About a generation later—that is, in the thirties of the nineteenth century—came the real thing in valentines—the deliciously, hopelessly, helplessly sentimental effusions of the age of autograph albums and daguerreotypes. During these decades of British and continental romanticism, when the fine arts all together dropped to the lowest depth of aesthetic degradation they had ever reached, the art of valentine making flourished as never before or since. When the collector of today says "valentines" he means those of the funny forties.

Great Valentine Industry.
Especially in England, the home of the art of the heart, a great industry grew up around the valentine, employing a multitude of workmen from poets to the makers. Everybody save everybody else a valentine, to delight or to insult. Maids and bachelors, widows and widowers all looked eagerly for the postmail on St. Valentine's day.

It is these mid-century English valentines that have in the past few years caught the fancy of collectors of the old missives, as readers of a chapter on "A Box of Old Valentines" in Virginia Robie's "The Quest of the Quaint" may have noted. In Cincinnati Frank H. Bear has formed a collection of valentines that is internationally famous, with upward of 2,000 specimens, representing such makers as Kershaw, Marks, Dobbs, Martin, Gilks, Peck, King, Richardson, Hughes, Bryn, Hodgson, Kidwell, Tegg, Denn, Bailey, Harrison and others of London; Lloyd of Edinburgh, Leleux of Calais and Riedel of Nurnberg.

Churches and towers rise in the background of many of these February romances. In one, at least, issued over the name of "A. Park, London," the village church is all the picture—just a fine, substantial late Gothic structure quite literally depicted. To the receptive maiden it must have come as a rather commonplace if apparent symbol of her suit-or's hope for early nuptials. Seemingly he might have sent something with a little more of the color of love. However, probably he knew the temperament of the lady.

The Message Revealed.
Just the bare church and it imperfect, for that flap over against the southern aisle has not been properly pasted down. "Why, look, it was intended to be lifted." You raise it, the loose cardboard, and behold, you are looking into the warmly lighted church interior where a pretty wedding, just like the one we hope to have, is in progress. Was there ever a sweeter conceit? To match the sentiment of the picture these dainty lines:

Yes, here at last young love and I
The Gordian knot of love shall tie.
And throbbing thus, my bosom swells,
To listen to the marriage bells.
O! hasten fond one—haste to me,
In thine own truth and constancy.

Concerning the maker of this church-wedding valentine, and of many others which are much sought after by collectors, Miss Robie has gathered a bit of information. He was located at 47 Leonard street, London, and made many valentines about the time of Queen Victoria's wedding. His productions are generally "printed in color over a black and white foundation, the deep reds and blues and a green running at the edges as if put on with a full brush. The scene is always set in the center of a large sheet. The lady is always retiring and coy. The gentleman wears a low waistcoat, a high stock and Victoria whiskers, alas for high romance, while Cupid looks on like a small English schoolboy intent on a new gag. Park valentines are not beautiful, but they are well worth securing and a few are decidedly amusing."

Cupid and a Merry Widow.
Much to several of the valentines of the famous collection somehow reminds one of the art, or artlessness, of the beefy English ladies who semi-expose their charms to all weathers among the fortyfives bushes along the facade of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Wholesome beef-fed Briton, the fact is, asserted itself even in the most ethereal manifestations of nineteenth-century romanticism. In such valentines as the one of a plump blonde lady with Merry Widow hat who complacently permits three cupids to peep about her neck and shoulders. Nothing in the workings of the piece suggests that this buxom middle-class lady is a widow of thirty-five, but one rather gathers that from her appearance. She is very "east county," very Nordie in build. Her lover, on the other hand, one suspects from his identification of fairies and cupids, is a dolichocephalic Irishman, a kinsman of Lloyd George. Good luck to his suit. This, at all events, is his invocation:

Fairy, for her my passion move,
Whisper 'neath her ringlets that I love.
Fairy, upon her molded bosom press
Thy rosy fingers to yield a happiness.

Man, the deceiver, comes in for a swat from "grandma" ("truly, she herself had suffered!") in a valentine in which a tall, fragile, willowy, underfed and presumably tubercular damsel in low, well-nigh improperly low, bodice, fills part of the room with her bulging crinoline. The old dame sits in a chair reading from "The Sorrows of Werther," or "Don Juan" or other religious literature of the period, and thus begins a homily which is interrupted and contradicted by the young man sending the tender missive:

Dear girl, whilst listening to a lover's
TONGUE
Beware deceit—save when a youth
Like me unfolds his heart to spouse
Thee in conjugal links of truth.

Somebody, somewhere, in those Tennysonian days, discovered with Browning that "Love is Best," and thus communicated with the loved one under the caption of "Return of Happiness."

The heart that lay in secret woe
Has borne love's arrows ratchling there.
Now raised by hope's deceptive glow,
Now sinking into dull despair,
That heart alone can duly feel
The madning joy, the ecstatic bliss
Of knowing that their love's returned—
This, this, indeed, is happiness.

No love so wonderful as that first experienced, maintains another writer, whose lines on "First Love" accompany a pretty picture:

Like as the moon's subliming light,
Thrown on the rain, tree or stone,
Will give to objects dear and dull,
A beauty which is all their own.
Just so First Love a radiance throws
O'er every object on life's stream
And gives its own bright coloring
To all that's touched by its pure beam.

In such manifestations on one day of the year of love and sentiment like that which in our time Miss Mildred Champagne has ably edited daily the temper of the remarkable Victorian age may be studied closely. As for St. Valentine's day itself, whose observance reached its apogee about 1850, readers of English literature need not be reminded how frequently it is mentioned by the poets and romancers from Chaucer downward.

TWO EASTERN N. Y. HOSPITALS

Described By Captain Baker, Kingston Doctor, and Evidence First Hand That Nothing Is Spared in Treatment of Disabled Soldiers.

To the Editor Kingston Freeman:

Sir:—Perhaps it may be of some interest to a few patients and friends to hear how one member of the medical fraternity from Kingston is faring in active service in the Medical Corps, U. S. A.

On November 1st I reported for duty at U. S. General Hospital No. 8, Otisville, N. Y. A new base hospital of 1,200 beds, specially qualified to handle cases of tuberculosis, of which at that time we had about 800. My assignment was as assistant chief of eye, ear, nose and throat section, where we treated in clinic rooms, 60 to 75 patients daily. Not much eye work, nothing but minor surgery, plenty of ear, nose and throat cases, especially tubercular laryngitis in all stages of progression from simple infiltration of vocal cords with cough and recurring hoarseness to fully developed ones with total loss of voice, the difficult swallowing and whispering, these symptoms complicating serious pulmonary tuberculosis and generally ending fatally.

The literature on pulmonary tuberculosis is extensive. Much has been written in the past 10 years for public education. Today it is safe to say we all understand this disease in a fashion, and I considered myself as competent to handle cases coming under observation as the "average" medical man. It remained, however, for me to go to Otisville, to come in actual personal contact with hundreds of these cases, to have the opportunity to examine these boys daily, to see every stage of development, to associate with, and to see, in the case of these patients, to attend lectures given by such men as Col. Bushnell, chief of tubercular work, U. S. Army, and Major Reinhardt, surgeon general's office, to have access to the latest and best literature on this subject, the most common disease in the world, before I realized how very little I really did know, or how meagre is the average person's knowledge of the true situation. Perhaps a few words by way of illustration may be of interest.

First, generally speaking, the old theory of the contagiousness of tuberculosis by contact or association has practically been discarded. We are not afraid of these cases in sanitariums, of handling or treating them or living with them, nor of their sputum cups or their laughing. No, because we are starting on an entirely new theory or hypothesis in explaining the persistence of this plague. We believe nowadays absolutely that we all have tuberculosis, that practically no one escapes the introduction of these germs into the blood stream, that in babyhood or early childhood, we commence to accumulate these bacteria, most probably at our milk drinking age, 1 to 6 years, that in most persons, a personal resistance of 85 to 100 percent, renders these germs harmless. They are always present, however, but held inactive by our own antibodies.

As soon as our vitality is reduced, due to whatever cause and our resistance is lowered, they are on hand to start business. Here is the reason for the tremendous number of new cases developing in our soldier boys: Change of occupation, food, hard work, lack of sleep, exposure and the way is open for an active tuberculosis to manifest itself. To parents having sons now under treatment, I say, go personally and see your boy, learn how each case is carefully graded, how wards are rated, on the basis of the condition of the inmates; how carefully cases, running high temperatures, are watched for complications, how the principles of rest, sleep, fresh air, good food, clean bodies and proper elimination is preached and followed to the men in their charge, explain the conference the relations of quiet, report progress and advance their postmasters and how large support through to more convenient place of W. S. S. are handled and companions as soon as possible, encouraging the men, appealing for their personal co-operation and the boys respond in most instances, not only willingly, but with great intelligence. For the past two months all tubercular throat cases have been segregated—also, one ward being given over entirely to this work—under the personal supervision of my chief and myself, treatments have been given daily, each case being considered individually and the result in many instances has been amazing; the trend now is to classify all active cases—and provide separate wards for each particular complication.

Finally, this disease is now considered to be incurable—nobody actually recovers as we understand the word—the condition is simply arrested, or, in other words, a new resistance is built up which restores the patient to the condition we call "healthy"—he recovers his weight, his strength and is finally discharged. Constant vigilance is the price of his safety. Under the direction of some competent specialist, qualified to advise him, he may cast off this trouble for all time and live to old age, even marry and have healthy children. He should never, however, forget the necessity for protecting his health, and regular habits add more than anything else to maintain this physical well being.

On February 1st, I received notice from the adjutant general's office, Washington, D. C., relieving me from duty at Otisville and ordering me to report to U. S. Gen. Hosp. No. 38, Eastview, N. Y., three miles from Tarrytown. On reporting I found this to be the new Westchester Alms house just finished and taken over by the U. S. government temporarily as a general surgical and medical hospital, with 1,000 beds, fully equipped with the latest and best of everything needed to help restore our boys to the best conditions possible. This hospital includes a reconstruction school where expert help will be given to convalescents who wish to embrace the opportunity to learn a new trade or art or to improve their present earning power.

Today I was appointed chief of eye, ear, nose and throat section, with full authority to order anything needed for the treatment of this class of cases. This will include glasses prescribed and supplied free through medical supply department to all those needing them, a most practical and to a great many men. From personal experience, I can say to anxious fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters or sweethearts, your boy is receiving the best of medical surgical and physical attention. Meals are excellent and well served, beds and bedding, wards and sanitation conditions, second to none, all that can be done is being attended to and well—this should be a great comfort to each and every one of you, who, like myself, have a son in the service.

DINE WITH SECRETARY GLASS.

Mayor and Postmaster to Attend Important Conference.

Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank has invited Mayor Canfield and Postmaster DeWitt, vice-chairman W. S. S. and city chairman W. S. S. respectively, County Chairman William D. Brininger being out of town, to be present at a meeting to be held at the Bankers Club, New York, on Saturday next at 11 a. m. The Hon. Carter Glass, secretary of the treasury, will address the W. S. S. committees of the Second Federal District and confer with them. Luncheon will be served in honor of the secretary at 1 o'clock at the conclusion of the meeting. The mayor and Mr. DeWitt have accepted the invitation.

Last Monday Messrs. W. D. Brininger, Jr., E. R. Alford and Postmaster DeWitt attended the first of the New York City War Savings conferences for 1919 in New York. It was very interesting to the men in their charge, explain the conference the relations of quiet, report progress and advance their postmasters and how large support through to more convenient place of W. PHEASANT EGGS BEING DISTRIBUTED

Albany, Feb. 14.—Sportsmen, farmers and lovers of game birds who wish to get in on the Conservation Commission's free distribution of more than 50,000 pheasant eggs and about 10,000 young pheasants during the coming year must step lively, according to a statement just issued by Llewellyn Legge, Chief of the Division of Fish and Game.

"In spite of the large output on the three game farms," says Chief Legge, "the requests for pheasant eggs and live pheasants for stocking purposes press hard upon the supply, and it is necessary that applications be received by the department not later than March 1st to insure proper attention, and in order that the commission's output may be planned. Stock will be assigned in the order in which applications are received."

Chief Legge states that many farmers and other individuals are still unaware that it is possible to obtain from the Conservation Commission, entirely free of charge, the eggs or young of pheasants for liberation upon their farms or in desirable sections, and he hopes that many of those who have not yet experimented in the raising of these birds will file applications before March 1st. Young pheasants, he says, are surprisingly easy to rear, according to instructions which accompany each shipment, and the only requirement is that he birds be liberated on unposted lands where any one may enjoy the sport of shooting them according to law.

Application blanks are supplied upon request to the Conservation Commission, Albany.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, Feb. 14.—Mrs. Mason Van Wageningen and son, Robert, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Van Wageningen, returned to her home in West New York, accompanied by Mr. Van Wageningen's mother.

The Rev. Mr. Polhemus of Port Jervis occupied the pulpit of the Reformed Church on Sunday morning and gave a very interesting sermon from Rev. 1:9.

Miss Leila Van Wageningen, who has been confined to the house with influenza the past two weeks, is able to be out.

Mrs. Robert Clearwater has been very ill with influenza the past week. Robert Clearwater, Will Williams, Chipp Quick and Cyrus Gillespie spent the week end with their families.

The Ladies Aid Society met in the basement of the church the past Thursday afternoon. The time was pleasantly spent in quilting. After the roll call and business meeting, dainty refreshments were served.

Miss C. Drury, who has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. R. Brewer of Mamaroneck, N. Y., since Christmas, returned to her home. Her many friends are glad to have her with them once more.

THE NAVY'S NEEDS

The following young men have enlisted in the U. S. Navy at the sub-station at the main post office on Broadway and have been accepted:

Joseph Robb
Edward Gallagher
Five left for New York last Friday for final examination and three on Wednesday of this week.

Over twenty-five young men have applied since this recruiting office has been reopened and Officer Weismaster and Postmaster DeWitt are well pleased with results.

Great opportunities await those young men who desire to see the world and learn a trade or improve their knowledge at the same time. Great draughts are nearing completion and must be manned. The navy needs you.

Full particulars in pamphlet form can be obtained at the main post office.

Extensions of Red Cross Service.

Chief among the extensions of service to our soldiers in France have been the enlargements of canteen facilities at Bordeaux, Brest and other embarkation ports; the establishment of stations and assignment of workers to receive American prisoners coming out of Germany, of whom 1,700 were cared for at Vieux, Strassburg and Metz prior to January 1; the installation of new canteens at many points, including Nancy and Reims; and the business of keeping pace with the American Army of Occupation as it marched to the Rhine. Searchers, nurses, doctors and supplies were forwarded in great quantities to Trier, Stoney and other distributing points. In Alsace all the wounded who had been abandoned by the retreating Germans were cared for and sent to ambulance to base hospitals. From the March Red Cross Magazine.

KERHONKSON.

Kerhonkson, Feb. 14.—There will be a service in the M. E. Church Sunday morning and evening at the usual hour in the pastor, Mr. Anderson.

The Red Cross met at the home of Wanda DeWitt. A lot of work was done, after which a nice lunch was served.

Mrs. Hadden, our milliner, is having a February sale.

Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Terwilliger are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a baby boy. Both mother and baby are doing fine.

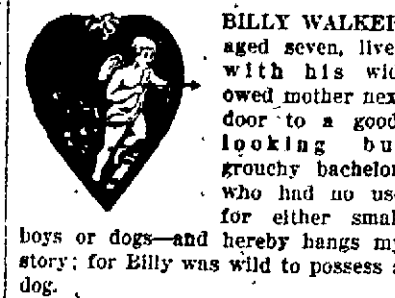

The funeral of Tuttle Davis, son of Mrs. Gertrude Davis, was held at Middletown Monday. Much sympathy is extended to the family.

A number from this place attended the service at Ellenville Saturday evening.

The Red Cross will meet at the home of Mrs. Link McConnel Tuesday afternoon, February 14. Hope a large crowd will be present.

What a Valentine Achieved

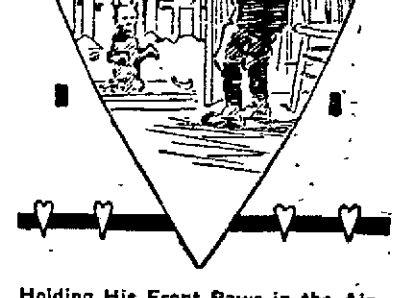

By Sadie Olcott

BILLY WALKER, aged seven, lived with his widowed mother next door to a good-looking but grouchy bachelor, who had no use for either small boys or dogs—and hereby hangs my story; for Billy was wild to possess a dog.

One late winter's afternoon came a whining and scratching at the kitchen door, which was opened by Billy, and there in the half-light sat a little brown dog holding his front paws up in the air in the most imploring manner, as though saying "Please take me in." Billy, with one howl of delight, seized the little dog in his arms and ran to his mother, who was preparing supper.

"Mother, see this dear little dog! Oh! Please let me keep it; you know

Holding His Front Paws in the Air.

My birthday comes next month and I won't ask for any other present."

In a moment of weakness the mother gave her consent. The dog was a poor, scraggly little creature, but had big soft brown eyes with a pleading look in them. However, the mother could see that with good feeding and good care it would improve in looks.

The next day the widow's troubles began. She tied the dog to a tree, thinking to keep him out in the air part of the day, but unfortunately the dog had had no training, so every passerby was jumped at, as far as the rope would allow, and a fierce-sounding bark accompanied the jump.

Next door the lone bachelor, Mr. Hall, was laid up in his room for a few days by an attack of gripe. The barking of the dog soon got on his nerves, but he was too much of a gentleman to complain to the widow.

However, he told Billy in very plain language what he thought of his dog. He had been in the habit of dozing comfortably till eight o'clock, but after the dog came there was no more sleep for him after seven, the hour when Bob was let out to play and incidentally to bark. Billy declared he wouldn't stop Bob from barking, for he would be sure to scare burglars away, the fact of the case being, however, Bob was a perfect coward and would have slunk away if threatened by anyone.

Valentine's day was near at hand and as usual Billy asked his mother for money in order to purchase his love messages.

"I guess I'll send mamma a valentine from Mr. Hall this year," Billy said.

Billy was anxious to have a friendly feeling in the minds of each for the other, for he thought it might be a help to him in the keeping of his dog. He asked the man of whom he bought the valentine to address it to his mother. Then on St. Valentine's day he left it at the front door, rang the bell and while his mother was opening the door, he ran in at the back door and up to his room.

Soon he heard his mother calling: "Billy I have a valentine. Who do you suppose sent it to me?"

"I know who sent it; do you really want me to tell you?"
"Yes, but I don't see how you know unless you sent it yourself."
"Of course I know. Didn't I see that gentleman who lives next door come through the hedge, go round the house with something, then go quietly back to his house?"

For some time the widow was inclined to disbelieve Billy's version of the valentine, then she acknowledged to herself that she had fancied that the bachelor was quite often observing her and almost seemed at times inclined to speak. Her mirror could not but tell her that she was still a very attractive-looking woman, though she would have to own up to thirty-two years on her next birthday.

As these thoughts ran through her mind she said:

"Well, Billy, if I had a valentine I might be tempted to return the compliment."

Then the wise Billy thought that a good idea; if he should send Mr. Hall a valentine from his mother, then he would feel still safer about his dog.

The next day just as Billy saw the bachelor approaching his home he dropped the valentine at the front door and ran, making sure that Mr. Hall should recognize him.

In a few days Mr. Hall asked one of the neighbors to introduce him to the widow, and finally an interested party asked permission to bring him to call upon her.

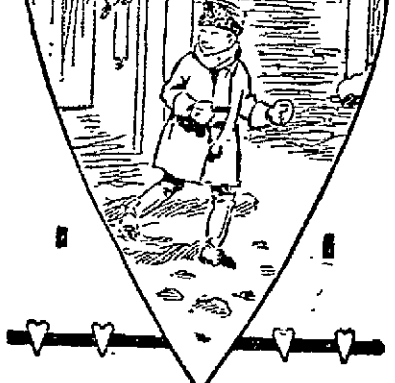

Each believing the other had sent a valentine, they felt somewhat flattered by the attention, and they proceeded to be very agreeable to each other.

Mr. Hall called frequently after that. He made much of Billy, and even spoke a good word for the dog. Billy felt very proud of himself and his plans for his dog, but one day his mother said:

"Billy, Mr. Hall is going to be your new father."

Billy felt crushed, for as he told one of his boy friends: "I didn't want any stepfather; gee, I was only planning to keep Bob."

But poor Billy not only gained a stepfather whom he did not want, but lost his dog. Bob had not been trained in any way and his barking at strangers continued and increased.

Left It at the Front Door.

One day he tore the dress of a lady who was passing; she complained to the city authorities, and a notice was served that Bob should be sent where he would tear no more dresses. The order was complied with, and now, well, now—to mention St. Valentine's day to Billy is like shaking a red rag before a mad bull.

However, on Billy's next birthday his stepfather won his heart by giving him a full-blooded alreade.

People Clung to Old Custom.

Pope Galestus stopped the last of the pagan orgies still associated with St. Valentine's day in 496 A. D. Toward the end of the sixteenth century St. Francis de Sales set himself sternly to purge the saint's day, even of its love-making notes, valentines and frivolities. For the names of the opposite sex drawn as "sweethearts" ordained by fate for the coming year he substituted the name of the martyr himself and others, and pious mottoes replaced the amorous doggerel. But, as in the past, he found the populace refused to give up their mate choosing and merry-making. So, after almost fifteen centuries, St. Valentine still presides as the patron saint of spring-time and mating, as did Juno and Pan for centuries before him.

Long an Annual Festival.

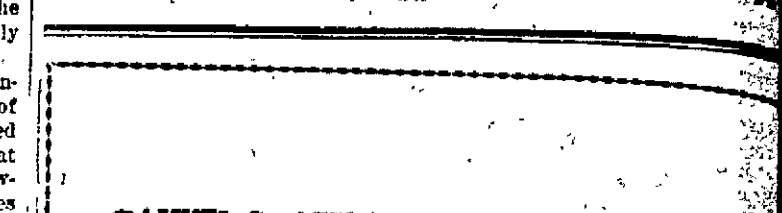

The history of good St. Valentine is of interest, and while in the year 1919 his devotees content themselves with sending postcard greetings or lace-paper connections decorated with scintillating epigrams, armed with roses and arrows, for time immemorial the middle of February has been the date of a similar annual festival, a fête connected with the feast of Juno, February and Pan, the coming of spring, and the time of the year in which the birds and men are supposed to choose mates.

THEY SURELY ARE WONDERFUL LITTLE WORKERS—
FREEMAN ONE-CENT-A-WORD "WANT" ADLETS

WHEN PEACE CAME

Oppressive Silence Followed the Great Crash.

Here at First to Realize That the Damage of Four Dreadful Years Had Ended—Huns Defeated but Unrepentant.

With a silence like that which follows the mighty crash of a great orator, the great war came suddenly to an end. No longer do the weary soldiers at listening posts strain their ears through long night watches; star shells have ceased to burst and flame over No Man's land; cannons have ceased to roar; machine guns utter no sound; the exchange of all manner of deadly missiles has stopped. At last peace has come. The thousand and one activities of battle, intense to the last ounce of possible human effort, are relaxed. Ships now cross the ocean in safety; smoke from thousands of ammunition plants no longer darkens the sky; dred workers return once more to their homes; armies are demobilizing; reconstruction of devastated homes and farms and factories is contemplated; the dreadful military debauch has consumed itself; the world draws a great sigh of exhaustion and relief; the conflict is ended.

In all history no message ever sped so gladly nor so fast as the few words flashed through the air and under oceans, and over land wires, until around the whole world and to its remotest accessible parts the news was carried. What wonder that all civilization gave vent to a frenzy of joy almost barbaric, that men shouted and women wept; and little children witnessed an event which three score years and ten hence they will relate to other wide-eyed children. In our joy let us not forget those millions of fathers whose voices refused to cheer.

and those mothers and wives and sweethearts whose eyes were dry because their hearts were bowed down with a sorrow no victory can ever compensate.

The Huns ceased only when physically exhausted; when their ammunition was spent; when the war had reached their own borders; when they no longer possessed the ability to murder the defenseless, to gas the brave. Their regret is that they failed, but not one single word of penitence for the harm they have done, the sorrow they have caused. Instead they think only of their bellies and demand, not supplicate, the food they have so wantonly destroyed for years; they whine lest the very cars they stole from France and Belgium be returned to their rightful owners. They have been beaten in what was for nearly four years an unequal struggle, but for any word which has yet to come out of Germany they are the same unrepentant Huns who, casting aside all the obligations of a civilized nation, marched into Belgium in August, 1914.

—Chicago Evening Post.

Believe It or Not!

Friends of S. F. Lockbridge, former state senator, and James I. Nelson, both of Greencastle, are telling a story regarding the strange actions of hogs on their farms last summer. Mr. Lockbridge went to his farm west of Greencastle and on arriving at a field in which were some fat hogs he saw the animals jumping into the air. He investigated and found them after big yellow-striped grasshoppers.

The same story is told of Mr. Nelson, except that his hogs were so wild over the grasshoppers that he had to remove them to another field where the provender was not so plentiful. In order to prevent the hogs from running off the fat faster than he could put it on by heavy feeding.

The grasshoppers were as large as a man's thumb and were in such quantities that the hogs by exerting themselves could catch enough to make their efforts "worth while."—Indianapolis News.

Some Various Valentines

Frederick Moxon

I have had them in silk and in lace, In velvet, and silver, and gold; Some brodered with Cupids and Graces

All over the marginal spaces, Wherever their winglets would hold.

I have had them with hearts pierced by arrows, Some singly, some skewered in pairs; With cavaliers down on their marrows; With love-birds, and home-building sparrows, And suchlike pictorial snares.

I have had them with verses delicious As ever were sugared with rhyme; And others whose wit, suppositious, Has left me for ever suspicious Of "comics," at three for a dime.

But the best I find pasted on memory's page Is this one you sent me at six years of age:

"The villits red The roses blew The pinky sweet An' sore yew."

FEW COMIC VALENTINES NOW

Little Regret That Foolish and Vulgar Custom Has Been Pretty Thoroughly Abandoned.

The comic valentine, which was painfully ugly and coarse, and which flourished very broadly at one time, has now almost entirely passed away, at least in its crudest forms. It used to be the greatest happiness of the schoolboy's life to purchase a very large assortment of these wretched comics and leave them on the front doorstep of his school teacher, male or female. Then when he had left a few comics on the steps of the village constable and paid his respects in similar fashion to the Sunday school superintendent he felt that St. Valentine's eve had been well spent. The joy of St. Valentine's day has diminished greatly since the practice of throwing valentines on the doorstep, ringing the bell and running, gave place to the less exciting method of mail delivery. But in spite of up-to-date interference with the valentine spirit St. Valentine's day always will hold its own. The most famous valentine verse ever written is still being attached to home-made valentines in painfully neat children's handwriting in various happy outlying districts where boys and girls have real fun without spending much money for valentines or anything else. Roses are as red as ever and violets are still true blue in the joyous land of boy and girl love affairs where reigns the good St. Valentine.

EFFECTIVE WORK

"Hey! You ain't got no address on that valentine."

"I know it. I don't want her to know who sent it on she knows my handwriting."

Custom Will Not Down.

Custom has decreed that on St. Valentine's day persons of the opposite sex should exchange affectionate messages, and custom is more potent than any other authority known to man.

LEAGUE PLAN READ BY THE PRESIDENT

between states members of the league any dispute likely to lead to rupture, which is not submitted to arbitration as above, the high contracting parties agree that they will refer the matter to the executive council; either party to the dispute may give notice of the existence of the dispute to the secretary-general, who will make all necessary arrangements for a full investigation and consideration thereof. For this purpose the parties agree to communicate to the secretary-general as promptly as possible, statements of their case with all the relevant facts and papers, and the executive council may forthwith direct the publication thereof.

"Where the efforts of the council lead to the settlement of the dispute, a statement shall be published indicating the nature of the dispute and the terms of settlement, together with such explanations as may be appropriate. If the dispute has not been settled, a report by the council shall be published, setting forth with all necessary facts and explanations the recommendations which the council think just and proper for the settlement of the dispute. If the report is unanimously agreed to by the members of the council other than the parties to the dispute, the high contracting parties agree that they will not go to war with any parties which comply with the recommendations, and that, if any party shall refuse to comply, the council shall propose measures necessary to give effect to the reason. If no such unanimous report can be made, it shall be the duty of the majority and the privilege of the minority to issue statements indicating what they believe to be the facts and containing the reasons which they consider to be just and proper.

"The executive council may in any case under this article refer the dispute to the body of delegates. The dispute shall be referred at the request of either party to the dispute, provided that such request must be made within fourteen days after the submission of the dispute. In any case referred to the body of delegates all the provisions of this article and of Article XII relating to the action and powers of the executive council shall apply to the action and powers of the body of delegates.

"Article XVI: Should any of the high contracting parties break or disregard its covenants under XII, it shall thereby ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all the other members of the league, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the covenant-breaking state, and the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between the nationals of the covenant-breaking state and the nationals of other states, whether a member of the league or not.

"It shall be the duty of the executive council in such case to recommend what effective military or naval force the members of the league shall severally contribute to the armed forces to be used to protect the covenants of the league.

"The high contracting parties agree, further, that they will mutually support one another in the financial and economic measures which may be taken under this article, in order to minimize the loss and inconvenience resulting from the above measures, and that they will mutually support one another in resisting any special measures aimed at one of their number.

"There are territories, such as Southwest Africa and certain of the South Pacific Isles, which, owing to the sparseness of the population, or their small size, or their remoteness from the centers of civilization, or their geographical continuity to the mandatory state, and other circumstances, can be best administered under the laws of the mandatory state as integral portions thereof, subject to the safeguards already mentioned in the interests of the indigenous population.

"In every case of mandate, the mandatory state shall render to the league an annual report in reference to the territory committed to its charge.

"The degree of authority, control, or administration to be exercised by the mandatory and to assist the league in ensuring the observance of the terms of all mandates.

"Article XX: The high contracting parties will endeavor to secure and maintain fair and humane conditions of labor for men, women and children, both in their own countries and in all countries to which their commercial and industrial relations extend; and to that end agree to establish as part of the organization of the league a permanent bureau of labor.

"Article XXI: The high contracting parties agree that provision shall be made through the instrumentality of the league to secure and maintain freedom of transit and equitable treatment for the commerce of all states members of the league, having in mind, among other things, special arrangements with regard to the necessities of the regions devastated during the war of 1914-1918.

"Article XXII: The high contracting parties agree to place under the control of the league of international bureaus general treaties if the parties to such treaties consent. Furthermore, they agree that all such international bureaus to be constituted in future shall be placed under the control of the league.

"Article XXIII: The high contracting parties agree that every treaty or international agreement entered into hereafter by any state member of the league shall be forthwith registered with the secretary-general and as soon as possible published by him, and that no such treaty or international agreement shall be binding until registered.

"Article XXIV: It shall be the right of the body of delegates from time to time to advise the reconsideration by states members of the league, of treaties which have become inapplicable, and of international conditions, of which the continuance may endanger the peace of the world.

"Article XXV: The high contracting parties severally agree that the present covenant is accepted as abrogating all obligations inter se which are inconsistent with the terms thereof, and solemnly engage that they will not hereafter enter into any agreements inconsistent with the terms thereof. In case any of the powers signatory hereto or subsequently admitted to the league shall, before becoming a party to this covenant, have undertaken any obligations which are inconsistent with the terms of this covenant, it shall be the duty of such power to make immediate steps to procure its release from such obligations.

"Article XXVI: Amendments to the covenant will take effect when ratified by the states whose representatives compose the executive council and by three-fourths of the states whose representatives compose the body of delegates.

Fin Pearl Necklaces.

Of fine necklaces which have been made from the magnificent collection of pearls contributed to the Red Cross from all parts of the British Empire, two are of considerable interest.

One of them is composed entirely of the fine collection of pearls sent from Egypt as a result of a specially beautiful necklace of pearls of the straw-colored tone which is so much sought after by buyers. The necklaces are not of uniform size; they vary in length, in color and, of course, in value. But all of them are of great beauty, for they consist of the best pearls from many famous necklaces, as well as from less well-known ones, matched by the chief experts in London.

The World Does Move.

The war has made many changes in world conditions. None perhaps is more picturesque than what has happened in Mesopotamia, the land over which Nebuchadnezzar once ruled. This year's harvest tells the story.

While no busy fighting the Turk and his Teutonic associates, the British found time to dig out a hundred ancient irrigation ditches and to bring into cultivation 320,000 acres. They have also given to Baghdad electric lights, paved streets, waterworks, sewerage, a fire department and a police force.

The natives must be rubbing their eyes in astonishment and wonder. Modern Brotherhood.

It is trimmed below the waist with brass buttons, and the lower sleeve is linked together with brass buttons. There is a cravat of the material. On the right is a tunic suit for a young girl, of red wool jersey trimmed with bands of cream-colored jersey embroidered in red and black. The large hat is of cream jersey faced with red straw and trimmed with a red cord and tassel.

BEST GOWNS FOR "FLAPPERS"

Street Clothes Proclaim Victory Like Trumpets, With Their Scarlet Coloration and Embroideries in Red and Black.

New York.—America has not yet found a fitting name for the girl of sixteen. The English call her the "flapper," and the Anglo-Saxon world, uses the expression, whether or not it approves of it. In America it is not liked, but no one has risen to put this type of young person in a niche and give her a name.

And she is quite important, proclaims a fashion writer. She deserves a strong appellation—a quick, vibrant, significant name for her class, her type and her virility. We have buried under the cobwebs of oblivion the "sweet sixteen" phrase. Both Tarkington has made the one word "seventeen" classify, at least for America, the youth of our land, with its awkward, stumbling tendency toward manhood, its budding emotionalism sternly suppressed, its pride and shame, its desire for girls' company, and its contempt for that desire. But if we applied the single word "sixteen" to that gay, ecstatic, poised, self-assured, highly educated, superintelligent, adventurous class of tall, slim things that spread over the land, usually setting the pace for their mothers' fashions, it would be puerile.

It is difficult to be pessimistic if one keeps close to the side of girls of that age. Their outlook on life, their faith in themselves and the world, their unbounded ability to find pleasure unaided by anyone else, renews youth in middle age. They are no longer creatures held on a leash. They are rarely asked to obey; they are constantly consulted by their mothers, and they usually take an intelligent part in the management of their home, its social environment, its financial expenditures, its ideals, and its ambitions.

Granting these things—and, everyone does grant them who has had any close acquaintance with the typical American girl, it is natural that her interest in clothes should be strong, and not only strong but usually exceedingly good. She dresses herself, as a rule, better than her mother can dress her.

Many Cater to Girls.

Working downward or upward, rather—through these psychological phases of girlhood among the Anglo-Saxons, and especially the North Americans, one finds the reason for the establishments of many successful dress-making houses which cater to young girls. Few of the great establishments here or abroad neglect the "flapper." From the time she is twelve until she makes her bow to society at eighteen she is catered to by houses that expend much ingenuity and brilliancy of workmanship on her special type of clothing.

Some of the important financial success in the dressmaking world of New York started with the schoolgirl. Fifth avenue houses which cater to downers and sentimental young women have determined this year to place young girls' clothes in their salons. Youngsters who try to look like Mary Pickford are often used as mannequins, but they have not been a success, because the sixteen-year-old doesn't wish to look like Mary Pickford. She wouldn't be caught with curls down her back, a sweet smile, and chubby legs below a short skirt. She often produces the most extreme fashions, which her older sister and her mother enjoy. She is the type, one might claim, for all the fashions of the civilized world today. That's a sweeping statement but just run over the gamut of fashionable clothes for the last five years and see if you don't come to that conclusion. The bobbed hair, the short skirt, the round neck, the baby sleeves, the sashes, the buttoned-down-the-back frocks, the short coats—these are the fashions that have ruled the world and have begun in the schoolroom.

What She Wears Today.

The youngster of sixteen chooses materials for her own clothes that are the same as those worn by her elders whom she envies little these days, because she rules a world of her own, that everyone acknowledges. She doesn't have to dress herself up in long clothes and high head dresses and play that she is old. She has been known to grudgingly loan some of her clothes to her young married sister for an especially "smart affair." She likes georgette crepe for her evening gowns, and therefore she wears a good deal of it. Velvet she has found her approval, and she orders school frocks and afternoon dance frocks in it.

She has a tailored suit which was especially designed for her judgment, and which she accepted. It has a coat that covers her hips, is cut on a straight line with a slight flare out at the back, and does not fasten. She ties it at the neck with a stiff cravat made of ribbon, polka, Chinese brocade, or the material of the coat. She may have six or eight of these cravats in her bureau drawer, or she hangs them on the electric light at the side of the bureau, in imitation of her brother. She likes her coat unfastened, for she never admits that she is cold. She has just escaped the hardening process of bare legs, bare arms and a cold nursery. The winter has no terrors for her and she dresses as she wishes, no matter what the thermometer.

Her Furs and Hats.

The "flapper" who is tall enough to carry a big fox around her neck is sure to come into possession of one. When her judgment goes against a big animal she chooses instead a conchman's collar of seal-skin or squirrel, which rises about her face like the collar of a flower and spreads downward over her shoulders, hugging them in the flat Victorian manner.

She has appropriated for her own use many accessories in polka that the older woman has neglected. She knows the cleverness of a fur cravat and the medieval splendor of a fur girdle.

And, by the way, the "flappers" have no idea of being left out of the procession of those wearing Victory clothes. They have no shrinking about their customery and what it signifies; they are instinctively psychological, and they wish to proclaim the side they took in the war by every manner of clothes that the dressmakers and milliners have thrown into the fashions to proclaim the day of peace.

So the "flapper" wears red—bright, glowing, triumphant red. She doesn't hesitate a second in choosing several garments of it. She is not weighed down by the anxieties of her elders that certain colors must be taboo because they are drawing a map on the face.

RUSSIAN PRINCESSES LEARN TO TRIM HATS

Y. W. C. A. Saves Wife of General From Becoming Charwoman.

When the war work of the Y. W. C. A. in Russia has all been told one of the most interesting stories will be the establishment of the first Women's Co-operative Association at Moscow.

Three days after day princesses work side by side with peasant girls, wives of high Russian officials make dresses or trim hats at home tables with simple, unadorned women, and the money is used for self support of these princesses and noble women as well as for the peasant classes.

The need and suffering throughout all Russia was so great at the time the Association was established that it was a problem to find where the money would help the greatest number of people. It was thought best to expend it to help capitalist organizations for giving work and permanent opportunities to families and individuals to earn their own living.

The women bring their handwork to the Association for sale or take orders to do dressmaking, millinery, etc.

When the Baboon Calls.

Rabbits have been a sore trouble lately to many South African folk, and poison clubs have been founded to keep them away and reduce their numbers. Rabbits recently aided a fawn in Robertson, and, ignoring all efforts to drive them away, rode the donkeys in the back yard. In Johannesburg, driven by hunger, they raided gardens in broad daylight.

Appreciated Cuts.

When Mital Hatfield, Sultan of Morocco, succeeded to the throne he found the sacred city of Fez infested by rats. Without any loss of time he at once nationalized all the cats of Morocco and issued a command that many thousands of them should be brought into Fez for service. For some time a law has existed in Morocco making it compulsory to keep cats in every house, the number varying according to the size of the house.

Fought Unnecessary Battle.

Very dramatic was the conclusion of the Peninsular war. Wellington had just won his triumph at Toulouse, the casualties on both sides numbering some 10,000, and the armies were exhausted or starving, when a third course was taken to terminate that Peninsular war which had lasted five years, and the war was over.

FOULARD FOR VEST

Material to Be Favorite, Taking Place of Fur.

Dresses and Suits for Early Spring Wear Show Trimmings and Linings of the Fabric.

Like the well-loved perennials of the garden, tulips, hyacinths and jonquills, which come back each year to a joyous welcome, writes an authority, our old friend foulard will again be a favorite when fur coats are laid aside. Many of the dresses and suits designed for early spring wear show trimmings and linings of foulard. A simple sport coat of blue foulard is given quite a dash of color by its vest of dotted foulard—white dots on a blue ground. This vest is, in reality, the front of one of the new long-skirted peplum blouses, which are designed for wear with cutaway coats of various lines. When the coat is removed a very attractive foulard blouse is displayed. The edges of the neck, sleeves and the peplum are bound with white foulard. A narrow belt of patent leather holds the fullness at the waistline. The coat belt is made of its own material, held by a silver buckle. A wide, white collar completes the neckline of the coat and extends in tabs below the belt. The hat, which is designed for wear with this suit and blouse, is made of the same material as the blouse—that is, dotted foulard—and is faced with plain blue taffeta. It is bound with dark blue gros grain ribbon and a band of the same ribbon ties the crown.

COPY WAISTCOATS OF MEN

Garments Donned by Fastidious Beaux of Other Days Now Charming Fashion for Women.

Waistcoats and waistcoat blouses are among the newest fashions from Paris, and are one more of the many charming old-fashioned modes which have been adapted to present-day styles. This particular fashion was taken from the clothes worn, not by the women, but by the men of long ago, for waistcoats of varied and brilliant fabrics were the garments most delighted in by the fastidious beaux of other days.

No less varied and fanciful are the waistcoats of today. They are made in the most delicate of chiffons, as well as in such wool materials as these times offer. Some of them consist of a front section of metal brocade which shows only when the coat is open, and others are made like a blouse, with sleeves of chiffon or crepe de chine, and with back and front of brocade or satin.

Waistcoats of this kind are worn with a suit, and when the coat is open they look much more substantial and effective than the ordinary blouse. Without the coat they make a one-piece costume of the suit, and one is not aware of any lack of harmony such as usually results from the use of an ordinary blouse and the suit skirt.

Rounding the Square.

In making bits of fancy work, one often has use for the perfectly round piece of material, but a pattern isn't always at hand, and guesswork is sure to be a success. But if you have a square to work with, or make a square out of your material first of all, rounding it won't be so difficult according to the following method. Fold your square in halves first of all, then in quarters. Then in eighths. Now, holding the material with the diagonal fold to the right, round off the lower right-hand corner from a point about one-quarter of the way along the diagonal to the lower opposite corner.

A Pig Under the Fence

By F. H. SWEET

(Copyright by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Cal looked down at his wheelbarrow. "Saves me the cost of hiring a horse and wagon," he said, "and I'm trying to save all I can, as I told you. I've worked hard at something every vacation."

"I know. And I've been ashamed of you every vacation," she retorted. "I vowed again and again I'd stop speaking to you. But you did so much better than the other boys in the high school, and looked so gentlemanly on the platform that I always overlooked your lapses. I was really proud of the way you represented our class when we graduated. Why don't you try and get a gentlemanly position like Arthur Bray and Andy Searies?"

"Because I feel just as gentlemanly between the barrow handles, and I'm making twice what Arthur does at the bank or Andy in the real estate office," he answered. "In fact, I was offered Arthur's job before he took it. I feel my time, with the future beyond, is worth more than $7 a week to me."

"But it's so—so common and undignified," she argued. "And it's sure to cut you from society. I'd rather go to the drug store for a soda with Arthur or Andy on their salary, than with you on twice as much, even though I—I might like you better, and you could make a better appearance if you would. Why, I'm beginning to hear you spoken of as 'Cal Cabbages.' It's horrid!"

Cal shook his head with a smile.

"I like it," he declared. "It tells I'm doing something. I hire a big field that seems exactly suited to cabbages."

Sped Down the Road.

They've been yielding great for me the past three years. Maybe I've earned the name of 'Cal Cabbages.' I'd like to think so. But the next work will be even worse, from your point of view. I've told you about Mr. Hatch, the coal dealer who wants a strong young fellow to go into the business with him, to shoulder some of the heavier work and responsibility. He was talking with me the other day—in fact, made a definite offer, which I've accepted. I'm to own a fourth of the business, and my crop of cabbages that I'm delivering will make my savings enough to pay for it. But I shall look after the harder outside part while Mr. Hatch, who's getting old, will stay in the office. I want to understand the whole business, so for a while will drive one of the delivery wagons, and probably be as black and dirty as any of the colored men. People may get to calling me 'Soft-Coal Cal,' or 'Anthracite,' or 'Bituminous Cal.' I hope so. And I hope the next thing beyond coal that I enter will stick to me the same way. I'd a thousand times rather have some such working name than be a mere mister, like that, or the other. You wouldn't like it, though, I'm afraid, Louise."

The girl had stepped back, her face cold and scornful.

"Cal Cabbages—'Soft-Coal Cal'—wheelbarrow—smooched—face—one never could guess what next with your horrid taste. No; I wouldn't like it, and whatever we may have talked of is off, utterly."

But somehow, even for Louise's friendship Calvin could not wish himself other than he was. He liked hard places that must be climbed over or pushed aside. The very zest of achieving almost paid for the hardship of it. He would far rather struggle for success in a cabbage field or coal yard, wrestling for every foot gained, than to sit at a desk in good clothes and trust to luck or diplomacy. But he did not wish any as he trundled the barrow alone.

Out near the edge of the town was a second-rate boarding house, kept by a woman who couldn't afford a better one or one nearer the center. She was an energetic, kind-hearted person, and though her boarders were all common day laborers who couldn't pay much, they were her good friends and acted as sort of house policemen, watching newcomers and transients frankly and seeing they paid their board promptly when due.

From the small margin above and she had met Adelaide Eliza, her only child, through high school. The girl had been in many of Calvin's classes, and had graduated at the same time. But he knew very little of her. He remembered her chiefly as a distant, black-eyed thing in neat but out-of-date and much turned, and darned clothing. Such of the girls as noticed Adelaide Eliza did it to ridicule, and make her angry. Some of the boys did the same. They liked to watch the black eyes flash and the angry feet stamp.

But they couldn't ridicule her from school. The girl literally fought her way through, without a friend, and graduated with almost the highest honors. After school she had always darted away ahead of the others, going across lots; and in the morning had slipped in just as the last bell was ringing. It enabled her to escape much of the ridicule. After graduating, she disappeared in the same way, taking no part in the later exercises or social farewells. Some of the girls remarked on it in low voices, perhaps ashamed of things they had said or done.

Calvin had been too much absorbed in his books to notice much. In all their schooling he hadn't spoken to Adelaide Eliza half a dozen times—nor for that matter, much more than with any of the girls except Louise, who had a seat near him, and walked as far as her home on the same sidewalk.

As he trundled his wheelbarrow out through the edge of the village, where there were more vacant lots and larger gardens, a sudden mild, protesting squeal rose directly in front.

Rank weeds and bushes grew outside, some of them nearly as high as the fence. Calvin ran his wheelbarrow a few more feet, then stopped abruptly. A path had been worn through the weeds to the fence, and crouching in the path, straining back, her feet braced against a rail, was Adelaide Eliza, her two hands clutching the hind legs of a pig. The rest of the pig was beyond the fence, and he was struggling and squealing with all his force. At Calvin's appearance the girl twisted her neck to look at him.

"O sir, knight," she cried, with mock piteousness, "come to the help of a poor distressed maid. I can't hold on, and I don't let go."

Cal dropped the barrow handles and hurried to the fence.

"What shall I do?" he asked.

"No need. Got it in my pocket," he said. "I don't know. It's our pig. He's been through this hole into Mr. Witt's garden twice. Mr. Witt swore he'd kill him, and sue mother for damages the third time. This is it. I chased and caught piggy at the critical moment. He isn't all in the garden. Now what shall I do. Solomon of the books? He's too heavy to carry. If we cut him in two there'll be only half to give mother, while the other half will eat the garden and bring a suit for damages. Think up something."

"No need. Got it in my pocket," he said. "I don't know. It's our pig. He's been through this hole into Mr. Witt's garden twice. Mr. Witt swore he'd kill him, and sue mother for damages the third time. This is it. I chased and caught piggy at the critical moment. He isn't all in the garden. Now what shall I do. Solomon of the books? He's too heavy to carry. If we cut him in two there'll be only half to give mother, while the other half will eat the garden and bring a suit for damages. Think up something."

"Just to your left—those cabbages. See, there's one half eaten. He'll go straight to that. It's piggy's nature."

Cal drew a package from his pocket and bent over the cabbage head for a moment. As he ventured back over the fence he sneezed.

"Now let him go," he said.

Adelaide Eliza looked up at him questioningly. She was accustomed to tricks. But Cal had never played her one. Of all the schoolboys he was the only one in whom she felt confidence. But the issue with the pig was critical.

"Poison?" she said, doubtfully.

"Neither. Let him go."

She released her grasp. Cal caught her arm and assisted her up quickly.

"Give him full right of way," he advised. "He may be in a hurry. Now watch."

Piggy had shot into the garden, with squeals of defiance and triumph. He believed he had beaten his adversary. In a moment his mouth was full of cabbage.

"A second of amazed inquiry, with his snout in the air, as though challenging the world in general, then piggy whirled, shot back under the fence and sped down the road with frenzied squeals of angry protest. Adelaide Eliza's eyes followed him wonderingly."

"What does it mean?" she asked.

"Why, he's too heavy for us to carry, you know, so I'm making him carry himself. It's so much easier. Watch."

"What does it mean?" she repeated.

"Just red pepper. I've been using it on a bit of our California privet hedge, where the fence is low. Stray cows have a way of reaching over and nibbling. But the red pepper stops them—awakens their conscience without harming them any, you know. Your pig won't bother this garden any more."

"It's the fun—funniest thing I ever heard of," she choked. "You're a wonder."

Cal acknowledged with a grin. He was reconsidering his opinion of Adelaide Eliza. She was full of fun, and, yes, he realized with a good deal of surprise, she was much prettier than Louise. He had an odd feeling that by acting the way it did, the school had lost much.

"I'm coming round tomorrow to see if that pig holds spite," he said, as they walked side by side, he trundling the barrow. "I wonder if he'll shake jaws. And I'm glad we live so near each other. Now there are no schoolbooks to take over time, we ought to become better acquainted."

"I'll be glad to," she answered simply. "I never seemed to make friends at school. I'll be glad to have one." Oddly enough, after he left Adelaide Eliza at her gate, Cal resumed his whistling, and he kept it up till he got home.

SPEED MANIA CONFINED TO RACING TRACKS

DARIO RESTA, AMERICA'S FOREMOST DRIVER.

Dario Resta's speed mania is confined to the racing tracks. The speed king is a champion in more than one form of sport.

As a racing driver he has stood supreme for years. In 1911-12 he was the international figure skating champion. He is a strong advocate of "sport for sport's sake," and practices what he preaches.

Exercise is Necessary.

In giving his views on sports and athletics in general, Resta says: "To keep the body and mind well, every man and woman needs a certain amount of physical and mental recreation. But they should not overdo them. They should not go to it as though everything depended on their putting into such physical and mental recreation all the energy they possess."

"My favorite game is golf. I never went in for the strenuous game of speed skating. I derived all the exercise I needed from the same branch of the sport."

REMOVE CARBON FROM AN ENGINE

Oxygen Method of Burning Out Is Applicable to Nearly All Contrivances.

HAND SCRAPING IS SUREST

In Use of Liquid Decarbonizers No Direct Indication Is Given at Time of the Effectiveness of the Treatment.

When an engine becomes carbonized to the point that premature ignition occurs as evidenced by the occurrence of the "carbon knock," the deposits must be removed and the removal of the incrustations by hand scraping is altogether the surest method, most authorities agree.

Engines having detachable cylinder heads can be cleaned by scraping with the greatest facility, but those that have not often require expensive disassembling to enable a thorough scraping to be performed. Still by the use of specially adapted scraping tools most engines having valve openings of liberal diameters and cylinder-head plugs can be pretty well cleaned with out their being taken apart.

Oxygen Method.

The oxygen method of burning out deposits is applicable to nearly all engines with cast-iron pistons and is fairly thorough in its results. When oxygen is applied until no further combustion can be obtained in any part of the compression space it is certain that the cleaning is complete.

This process requires no disassembling of the engine and can be performed very cheaply if the owner can obtain the use of the necessary outfit to do the work himself and pay only for the oxygen used. In the use of liquid decarbonizers, no direct indication is given at the time of the effectiveness of the treatment, as is the case with hand scraping and the oxygen method.

In order to be sure that a thorough cleaning has been accomplished a valve cap or two should be removed before the application is made and the thickness of the deposit upon the inside of the cap and on the accessible parts of the valve chambers should be noted.

Engine Not Always Clean.

If, after the decarbonizer has been applied, these parts are found to be clean, it is presumptive evidence that the piston heads and other not readily accessible internal surfaces are also free of deposits. Unless these precautions are taken it sometimes happens that even though later examinations show the decarbonizer to have had but little effect, the owner being in a state of mind to expect the best results, thinks that his engine is clean when this is not the case.

WINDSHIELD CLEAR OF SNOW

Alcohol Added to Cleansing Water Will Aid in Preventive in Keeping Moisture Away.

Frost, dew, snow or rain on the windshield of an automobile is dangerous. Alcohol added to the cleansing water will aid as a preventive. If the shield and windows in the car do not need cleansing apply a coating of three parts of alcohol and one part glycerin and rub to a polish. This is especially useful in closed cars.

ALCOHOL WILL KEEP ENGINE FROM FROST

Kansas Expert Points Out Satisfactory Liquid for Car.

Solutions May Be Mixed at Home and Are as Efficient as Those Purchased—Proportions for Various Temperatures.

Alcohol is the cheapest and one of the best anti-freeze liquids on the market for the automobile, according to W. A. Buck, instructor in gas and steam engineering in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"It will not affect the hose connections between the engine and the radiator and because of its low freezing point will lower the freezing point of the cooling solution in the water system of a gas engine to as low a point as desired," said Mr. Buck.

"Several anti-freeze solutions are on the market, but the majority of these are composed of glycerin and alcohol, the glycerin being used to stop the excessive evaporation of the alcohol. This addition of glycerin is not imperative, however, as there is little evaporation unless the solution is brought to the boiling point by the overheating of the engine."

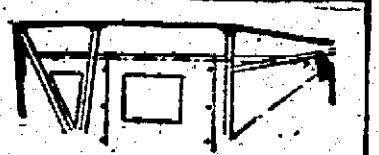

"For zero weather, three-fourths water and one-fourth alcohol should be used. When the temperature is 10 degrees below zero a solution of 70 per cent water and 30 per cent alcohol should be used, while for a temperature as low as 20 degrees below zero a solution of 60 per cent water and 40 per cent alcohol will be necessary. The radiator should be filled from time to time with a solution of the same strength as the original."

ATTACHMENT FOR MOTOR CAR

Mechanism Provided to Permit Driver of Vehicle to See Cars Approaching in Rear.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing an attachment for motor vehicles, invented by R. A. Puller, 1219 Wilding street, Portland, Ore., says:

The invention has for its object to provide mechanism in connection with a vehicle for permitting the driver to see following vehicles, by means of a mirror arranged at the front of the vehicle. This is accomplished by means of a mirror mounted on the windshield, the top of the vehicle, having an opening at the left upper corner in line with the mirror, a disk of transparent material covering the opening, the mirror and disk being above the heads of the passengers and driver when seated.

MANY AUTO CARS IN KANSAS

Every Seventh Person Is Possessor of Vehicle, According to Figures of Registrar.

Kansas has one motorcar for every seven persons, according to figures announced by C. W. Myers, motorcar registrar in the secretary of state's office. A total of 195,273 cars were registered in the state up to November 1, Mr. Myers announced.

THE FREEMAN'S CENT-A-WORD ADLETS SAVE MONEY, TIME AND WORRIMENT—PUT YOUR "WANTS" UP TO THE LITTLE HUSTLERS

WHEN IS MOLASSES NOT MOLASSES?

Home Economics Women Determined to Have the Real Article and No Substitutes.

After a discussion on the subject of "Pure Molasses," which took place at the county wide meeting of the Home Economics Association, held at Kingston in January, 753 women of Ulster county placed their names to a petition which was sent to Washington, and which asked that some action be taken up by the food administration to obtain "pure molasses" for the market.

"Surprising Answer."

After waiting about ten days Mrs. Thomas Cole of Saugerties, who is the county leader of this drive for "pure foods," received the following answer to her letter:

"We have taken this matter up with several of the principal molasses manufacturers of the country and they advise us that they have not seen, heard or tested Baltimore molasses for many years and are in doubt whether the same can be bought in the United States at the present time.

"They advise us that you can buy any quantity of pure Louisiana molasses, absolutely as it comes from the sugar cane, from any molasses dealer of good reputation, which contain no acids whatever.

"They further advise us that they do not know anything about poisonous molasses, do not understand why it is necessary for any molasses concern to use poisonous acids, and that furthermore they do not believe any of them do. We would therefore suggest that you get in touch with any good wholesale grocery concern of your vicinity and they will, no doubt, be glad to furnish you with pure Louisiana molasses.

"Yours very truly,

(Signed) THE UNITED STATES FOOD ADMINISTRATION.

"Per. J. J. Crowley."

Recognizing this answer as not being the frank informing statement it should have been, Mrs. Cole referred her communication to Alfred W. McCann, food specialist, and in charge of the pure food department of the New York Evening Globe.

Mr. McCann in his answer in the New York Evening Globe asked why the United States food administration did not appeal to the United States bureau of chemistry for an answer. The United States bureau of chemistry knows there is not a single drop of Louisiana molasses now sold which is free from sulphites.

Further he explained that in November, 1917, the Penick & Ford Company, Ltd., of New Orleans, La., experimented with a pure molasses, free from sulphurous acid or any of its salts. They made 40,000 gallons of it and sold it at a premium in barrel lots.

I was permitted to taste a sample of this delicious, old-fashioned, pure syrup at the company's office, 17 Battery Place, in April, 1918. The product was a beautiful one, distinctive in flavor, of fine body and color. It was not called "molasses," but "cane syrup," because molasses, as now sold, does not contain all the sugar of the cane, although cane syrup does.

The commercial molasses of the market place, however fanciful the advertised name under which it is sold, is not pure cane syrup. There are many forms of chemically treated New Orleans molasses now on the market, but all of them contain sulphites.

The Penick & Ford Co., Ltd., have proved that it is impossible to make a perfect product, free from sulphites, under the name of cane syrup, but such product is unfortunately not for sale. However, I am on the trail of a pure cane syrup which at the present writing I believe to be absolutely pure and which, as soon as it comes out of the Globe laboratory, where it is now being tested, I shall report upon it to you.

The difference in price between pure cane syrup, free from dope, and the lower grade molasses represents but a few cents a gallon, yet these few cents constitute the only stumbling block between the public and the very best sugar product it can buy.

In the very near future the Ulster County Home Economics Association through Mrs. Cole will inform you as to where and how to obtain the much needed pure molasses.

DEVOTED KNITTER
FOR RAINBOW BOYS

With the American Army of Occupation, Zindig-on-the-Rhine, Feb. 14.—When the Rainbow Division boys reach their homes all over "God's country," they will be wearing rainbow raincoats of red, yellow and blue knitted for them by a Y. M. C. A. woman from Rhode Island. She sits near the big stove in the "Y" hut at Zindig and she knits. Between the khaki shoulders and the close shaven heads of a crowd of soldiers glimmers can be caught of her shining needles. But it is not khaki socks or helmets or sweaters she is knitting, gone are those reminders of war.

She is knitting a brilliant crescent of red, yellow and blue silk; three rows in short. She is making raincoats for the Rainbow Division. The boys of the Rainbow Division had been seeking German trunks and trunks who would sell them silk or velvet strips of the rainbow colors and then make these into the regulation shape.

CLINTON COMMANDERY

Celebrated Lincoln Day and Held Public Installation.

A very fittingly celebrated Lincoln Day at their lodge room Wednesday evening, February 12. The newly elected officers of the commandery were publicly installed in a very able manner by Major W. L. Brower and Past District Commander S. N. Allen. There was a large gathering of the members of the commandery, members of Washington Camp, No. 2, and also invited guests. The officers installed were as follows: Commander, Joseph Myers; vice commander, Charles Rogers; recorder and receiver, Harry Van Vleet; treasurer, Edward Van Vleet; chaplain, Harry Swarthout; orderly, Fred Hicks; guard, William Freer; pocket clerk, Charles E. I. Myers. After the installation a very interesting vocal and instrumental entertainment was rendered. The program as rendered is as follows:—Singing of opening ode. Miss Blanche Oakley presiding at the piano; opening prayer by state chaplain, Ira Britt; recitation by Herbert Myers; vocal duet by Joseph and Stanley Myers; vocal trio, Henry Swarthout, Joseph Myers and Miss Blanche Oakley; address by Major W. L. Brower; address by Past District Commander S. N. Allen; closing prayer, Mrs. Clay Sikes; closing ode. The commandery also of the Washington Camp, No. 2, are both in a flourishing condition. News members are being added at every meeting to both branches of the order. Next Wednesday evening a class of seventeen candidates will be initiated into the camp and a majority of these will also join the commandery.

Coke's Money to Use Chair.

There is a "bull" chair in the house where may be seen an old armchair offered to have been formerly used by the good Benja when he lived in the place. All who sit in this chair are required to "pay" all who may be in the room at the time.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, Feb. 14.—The Knitting Club was entertained by Mr. J. F. Norbury at her home on Warren and Park streets, Tuesday afternoon.

There were twenty members present to enjoy a very delightful afternoon.

Lincoln Day was appropriately celebrated, although Lincoln's birthday was on Wednesday, Feb. 12. A splendid program had been arranged by the president, Mrs. George Young.

Very ably assisted by Mrs. M. G. Ward.

A large picture of Lincoln occupied a prominent place in the home, while flags were everywhere to be seen, and flowers, carnations and sweet peas, added charm to the occasion.

The program opened with quotations given by members, words that had fallen from the lips of Lincoln or words that had been uttered by other lips about him. This was followed by the reading of Lincoln's famous speech at Gettysburg by Mrs. Ward.

A reading, "A Perfect Tribute," by Mrs. W. A. Hoar, and a very interesting article entitled "Just a Word Today With Nancy Hanks Lincoln," from the pen of Robert Lincoln O'Brien, read by Mrs. Bert H. Terwilliger. This was followed by a short social hour, when the hostess and guests, while the Victorian rendered "The Star Spangled Banner," wended their way to the dining hall and were seated and a very delicious repast was served.

Tables had for their decorations the same fragrant flowers, sweet peas and carnations. Place cards and favors were in keeping.

The afternoon was altogether too brief and the end came all too soon and all voted in parting that the afternoon spent with one of their members of this modest club of knitters had been of such a high character that the memory of it would be lasting so much of profit and pleasure had been their fortune at the home of Mrs. Norbury, their loved and honored member.

The February meeting of the local W. C. T. U. was held at Hunt Memorial Hall Wednesday afternoon.

The meeting was under the direction of Mrs. John R. DeWitt, superintendent of the department of red letter days, and the very excellent program she had arranged was given. It was a happy coincidence, Frances Willard Memorial day, which occurs on Feb. 17, was celebrated this year on the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, for no man ever loved the temperance cause more than Lincoln. He said in 1852: "The most effectual remedy would be the passage of a law altogether abolishing the liquor traffic, and the morning before his assassination, April 14, 1865, to J. R. Merwin. After recollection of the great question will be the over-throw of the liquor traffic. No one's heart was more filled with the cause of temperance than the beloved leader of the W. C. T. U., Frances Willard, and whose memory was celebrated on Wednesday afternoon and an offering taken at the meeting to forward the work she loved.

Evening—Temperance Banquet. Prayers, Mrs. Nathan Smith. Secretary's report, Mrs. George F. Anderson.

Report of treasurer of Memorial Building, Mrs. Frank J. Potter.

Bertrand Bishop, an honor graduate of the shorthand department, has accepted a good office position with Carl Miller, electrician, Broadway, this city.

The following students received excellent percentages in the final stenographic examination held recently.

William Gallagher, 95 1/2%; Miss Beatrice Veeder, 97%; Bertrand Bishop, 95%; Miss Mary McLaughlin, 96%; Miss Louise Trez, 94%; Miss Ruth Leventhal, 91%.

Three young ladies from Syracuse, N. Y., have enrolled for the September session. Spencer's must be a thorough school to attract students from such a distance.

Her many friends in this city and Saugerties will be pleased to learn of her rapid advancement. Her former employer, a well known attorney, spoke in the highest praise of her excellent qualifications.

The new building to be occupied by the school within the next few months will be attractive and convenient. The typewriting department will be one of the finest rooms of the school, and will be large enough to hold 50 modern typewriters. Opening from this room will be the large assembly hall. The two will be separated by portable glass partitions. The inside view will be unsurpassed for elegance and comfort. Hand-some pictures such as pen drawings, sketches, original penmanship, some of which is from the old masters, will be hung in conspicuous places about the class and recitation rooms. Large numbers will enroll during the spring and summer months, knowing they will have fine quarters in which to fit themselves for the active duties of busy and successful careers.
